WHY?

In a recent address in the reichstag, Germany's imperial chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Holweg, declared:

"The war can be terminated only by a peace which will give certitude that war will not return. We all agree about that."

And they do all agree about that. England is quite as firm as Germany that when peace comes it must be a permanent peace; so is France and Russia and the rest of the combatants. There seems to be unanimous agreement that this war is going to be sufficient in the war line for years and years to come. It is, in truth, enough for centuries.

Under such circumstances, doesn't it appear foolish for the United States to spend millions upon millions for military armament that is to rust and rot through decades of peace?

With the nations of Europe intent upon peace, as they declare they will be and as common sense indicates they will be, when the present struggle is ended, and with the knowledge that we will have no trouble with Japan that is not of our own making, why should we spend our money on battle-ships that will be relegated to the scrap heap long before they will be needed and for armament that will be as useless in this great commercial nation as bayonets on boys' air rifles?—Joplin Globe.

J. LOUIS PFADU PASSED AWAY

J. Louis Pfau, father of Ed Pfau, manager of the Coleman Lumber Yard at Monett, died at Aurora, Saturday, December 18. The Aurora World reports his death as follows:

J. Louis Pfau, of Chicago, Ill., died this morning at 3:15, from pneumonia, following about a week's sickness with la grippe.

His body will be taken back to Chicago tomorrow for burial, accompanied by relatives and friends.

Mr. Pfau was the owner and manager of the Louisville Zinc and Lead Mining Co., and came to Aurora the early part of this year, and resided with his friend, Lewis S. Coleman, in order that he might give his personal attention to his mining interests located here. His wife came here a few months ago, since which time they have been keeping house in rooms at W. H. Berry's residence on College street.

Mr. Pfau was a man loved by every one who knew him, and has a great number of warm friends in this community.

The body will be moved to the L. S. Coleman residence today, at which place funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 10:15 a. m.
